Course description

Qualification Master of Science

Field of study Law, public administration, public order and safety

Course summary Managing Europe is a complex challenge. The Master's in European Studies gives you the expertise to operate in this fascinating environment where various levels of government come together.

Course description This programme will provide you with the skills and concepts to engage in the research and analysis of European political and administrative issues. It takes a comparative approach, looking at the interactions between national and European bodies, their effects and the ideas behind these processes. You can opt for the one-year European Studies programme, which has a strong focus on public administration and policy, and also features a specialization in EU Regulation. You might also pursue a two year-double degree with the University of Münster (Germany). The programme features academic rigour, practical relevance, a cross-disciplinary perspective and a strong focus on the EU. You will gain relevant core knowledge across the full EU spectrum and specialized expertise in your choice of electives. The demand for experts who understand the complexities of Europe extends well beyond Brussels. National governments, private firms and NGOs have a growing need for professionals with the right know-how to tackle the challenges of Europe. You might also consider a career at the European Parliament.

Study subjects European Institutions; International Relations Theory; the Multi-Level Policy Process in the European Union; European Economic Policies; European Union law; European Social Policies.

Course objectives	The ES programme does not focus solely on the EU in Brussels, but also on the impact of EU politics on Member States. Attention for European governance. Comparison between the structure and policy of European organizations with current and candidate Member States.
